The Daily Courant.

Vienna, April 3.

THE Venetian Ambassador has notified a Propostion which the Republick has made to the Porte, of giving up the Island of Corfu in Exchange for the Countries the Turks took from them last Campaign: But although they have not yet given an Answer, 'tis much doubted whether they will accept it or no, the rather since they continue to work with the utmost Diligence upon the Preparations for War both by Sea and Land. 'Tis some time ago that General Schuylemburg wrote a Letter to this Court, wherein he expressed his Discontent upon account of the bad Condition he found the Venetian Frontiers, insomuch that not seeing he could with Honour undertake the Defence of that Republick against the powerful Efforts of the Turks, he was resolved to retire from Italy: But his Imperial Majesty having let him know that he desired he should tarry in the Service of the Republick of Venice and put himself at the Head of their Troops, assuring him at the same time, that he will make a powerful Diversion by his Armies in Hungary and Transylvania, that General has changed his Mind, and will take upon him the Command of the Venetian Army. We see here the following List of the Generals that are already named by the Court, viz.

'Captain General. Prince Eugene of Savoy.

'General Field-Marshal. Prince Alexander of Wirtemberg.

'Generals of Horse. The Counts Palfi and Nadasti.

'Lieutenant-Generals of Foot. Virnond, Staremberg, Regal, Harray, and the Prince of Beveren.

'Lieutenant-Generals of Horse. Ebergni, Montecuculi, Mercy, Falkenstein, Martigni, and Patee.

'Major-Generals of Foot. Loncken, Bonneval, Willemstein, Joseph Count de Tau, Braune, Diesbach, Almeida, Marini, and the Duke of Arenberg.

'Major-Generals of Horse. Graven, Toogberg, Croix, Veterani, Hautois, Viard, Ibbkowitz, Gondrecourt, Althan, Cordua, Galbes and Prince Frederick of Wirtemberg.

In Transylvania.

'Count Stephanus, as General of Horse.

'Count Breiner and Major Tiege, Major Generals.

'Besides these Generals, 'tis expected his Imperial Majesty will name divers others.

Hamburgh, April 14. 'They write from Dantzick, that the Czar and the King of Polan are still there. The Russian Fleet at Revel is ready to sail with 1000 Land Forces on board, and a great Number of Transports. 'Tis not doubted but they are designed for the Coasts of Schonen to make a Descent. We hear from the Camp before Wismar of the 11th, that on the 7th at 11 at Night the Danish Colonel Arenschield begun with 150 Workmen to make the Bridge, mentioned in our former, cross the Mouth of the Harbour, with so much Success, that the same Night he carried it 318 Paces in the Water, and that so solid that it cannot be overthrown either by the Wind or the Current of the Water; which has gained him the Applause of all the Generals. And although this Bridge be within the reach of the Cannon of the Town, and that they have fired upon it incessantly, not one Shot has hurt it. Last Night he strengthened it by strong Piles and Posts driven into the Earth at the bottom of the Water, and covered it so conveniently, that the Troops are out of Danger upon it, and to Night he is to carry it on 200 Paces further. This Design appeared at first impracticable, but the Execution and Success has done the Colonel so much the more Honour. It looks as if the reducing the Place will still take up time, the Governor having Order to defend it to the last Extremity; so that all that he has hitherto proposed seems to have been only to amuse the Allies, and hinder them from pressing so soon the formal Siege, and leave them in hopes that they may soun take the Place through Famine.

London, April 14.

Yesterday arrived a Mail from Holland.

From the Hague Courant, dated April 22.

Dramme, April 4. The Swedes plunder the Country round about Christiania, which Place they still keep Possession of, and demand of it 20800 Rixdollars for Redemption, and 100 Rixdollars a Day. Wherever they come they seize the Richest Inhabitants, and take them for Hostages, as they have done at Outzoen and other Places; whence it follows that Skirmishes frequently happen with our Parties, that are posted up and down the Country. The Enemy have endeavoured to come and take this City also, but the Avenues are so well guarded by the Militia mixed with regular Troops, that they have been not only hindred in their Attempts, but have even been repulsed with the Loss of 3 or 400 Men. Christiania is not yet burnt, and the Castle of Aggerhuys has received but small Damage. In the mean time we earnestly desire the Arrival of the Auxiliary Troops from Denmark, and that the Frost may break and a Thaw come on, which 'tis supposed will contribute much to the driving the Swedes away.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated April 21.

Copenhagen, April 14. We have received an Express from Norway, with Advice that the Officers who went lately from hence by a Frigate, were happily arrived the 4th. That the Swedes have demanded 46000 Rixdollars of the City of Christiania besides 6000 Rixdollars per Month; but that the Governor of the Castle of Aggerhuys had answered them, that as long as he had Bullets and Powder, he should pay them that way the Contributions they demanded: That the Swedes would have marched to Dramme with a great Detachment to attack the Danish Troops that were on that Side, but they found the Roads so broken by Coupures and Trees laid across, that they were obliged to stop at Rhingeridgen: That the Danes being informed of it, had fallen upon them with so much Vigor, that they killed 400 upon the Spot, and took 600 Prisoners, and put the rest to flight: That the Swedes had afterwards endeavoured to intercept the Danes, but were again repulsed with Loss. That the Peasants also made a great Slaughter among the Swedes. They add, that 'twas believed Vice-Admiral Gabel was arrived in Norway with the 7000 Men of Land Forces he conducted thither, the Wind having been favourable ever since he sailed.

From the Amsterdam Courant, dated April 21.

Jamburgh, April 17. The Swedish Partizans give out, that they have News, that their King has taken the Castle of Aggerhuys Sword in Hand, and taken 1000 Danes Prisoners in it, with a very considerable Booty; namely, 58 pound weight of Silver uncoined, a Sum of coined Money, and a great deal of Plate: That their King received two Wounds in his Left Arm and one in the Breast, but it did not hinder him pursuing the Attack. And further they say, that the Castles of the Three Sisters, Kassers and Tillena, together with Sando and Horsfell, are also taken; but that Kis and Kongsholm were as yet only blockaded. They pretend, that round about Dramme, Hamberg, Bragenes, Kongsberg, Tinsberg, Sibern, and Laurig, the the Swedes have taken 4000 Masts, a great Number of Balks, and 4000 Last of Tarr. But all these things want Confirmation. From the Camp before Wismar we have Advice, that 10000 Russian Infantry and 1000 Cavalry were arrived there, and that the rest remain near Reynitz and Parchim; and that the Swedish Governor Schultz, not being able to hold that Fortress longer, has offered to Capitulate, and desires that his Garrison may march to Deux Ponts. 'Tis thought the Capitulation may be concluded in two or three Days, and the Garrison march out in five or six Days. The Swedes have raised their Gold Coins named Carolines, so that the single Caroline goes for 25 Oere of Silver Coin, and the Half and Doubles proportionate.

From the Hague Courant, dated April 20.

Dunkirk, April 12. The Ship that some Days ago came through the new Canal of Mardyke up to this Town, carried 16 Pieces of Cannon; and 'tis found that in the shallowest Places there is 17 Foot Water: And 'tis expected that by the great Scowring from the Land-Waters that fall into it apace at this Time, it will be made 26 or 28 Foot deep, and so Ships of all Burdens will be able to come up hither.
